OFFICER TELLS HIS SIDE OF MIX-UP WITH COWBOYS

With the courtroom crowded to capacity with friends of the parties concerned and an average quota of regular police court habitués, the preliminary hearing of the case of the State of Utah vs. D. L. White, Bud Gons, Robert Bohne, Dick Lee and Robert Shepherd was started this morning before Municipal Judge G. S. Barker. The defendants are charged with an indictable misdemeanor, that of resisting and interfering with an officer in the discharge of his duty. The complaint alleges that the five men, who are employed as cowboys in the stockyards at the west end of the Twenty-fourth street viaduct, assaulted and administered a severe beating to Motorcycle Patrolman George Covey on the afternoon of June 3, while the officer was attempting to place Inez Tracy and Mrs. Fay Christopolus under arrest. The fracas took place on the west end of the viaduct. Covey was badly beaten up, but has now entirely recovered from his injuries. The defendants were all in court and were represented by Attorneys George Halverson and Sam Powell, the latter's appearance as associate counsel being entered at the opening of the trial by Attorney Halverson. County Attorney Joseph E. Evans conducted the prosecution.

Patrolman George Covey was the first witness. In effect, his story was that he had been assigned to the work of keeping traffic moving on the viaduct and, due to automobilists and drivers of other vehicles stopping either at the bottom or the top of the west incline of the viaduct to watch the cowboys at their work of breaking horses in the stockyards, he was kept very busy. He had laid aside his motorcycle, he said, and was required to walk first to the bottom of the incline and then back to the top to notify the drivers of vehicles to keep in motion. While he was attending to this duty, the Tracy girl and Mrs. Christopolus, who were watching the cowboys "guyed" him, but he paid no attention to them. Shortly before 5 o'clock, the mother of the Tracy woman drove upon the viaduct in a buggy and stopped to talk to her daughter and Mrs. Christopolus. Covey permitted them to conclude the conversation and Mrs. Tracy drove westward a short distance and then stopped her horse again.

The officer then proceeded toward the outfit, intending to instruct Mrs. Tracy to drive on, but anticipating this action, as he neared the rig, the Tracy girl and Mrs. Christopolus took umbrage at his appearance and attacked him, the latter hitting him in the face with her hand and the former seizing a whip from its socket in the buggy and using it on him. He brushed Mrs. Christopolus aside, took the whip from the Tracy girl and broke it in pieces. By this time, Mrs. Christopolus regained her feet and again attacked him with her hands. He managed to get hold of both young women, placed them under arrest and was proceeding toward the telephone station at the west end of the viaduct to send in a call for the auto-patrol, when, without warning, one of the cowboys struck him between the shoulders with a piece of 2x4 scantling.

The blow had scarcely fallen, when another cowboy joined in the assault and the two, in addition to striking him, pinioned his arms and urged the girls to hit him. Covey finally managed to break away and ran toward the stairway leading from the viaduct down into the stockyards, but as he reached the top of the steps, he was met by the cowboys. He drew his gun and told the cowboys to stand back, but the gun was suddenly jerked from his hand and an instant later he was the center of an attack, he declared, by nine men, who beat and kicked him unmercifully.

On cross-examination by Attorney Halverson, Patrolman Covey testified that about twenty persons were on the viaduct at the time the trouble occurred and said that Mrs. Tracy's buggy was the only vehicle on the viaduct, as far as he could remember. He refuted the inference contained in the questioning by the attorney that he had been attacked by only one man, who took the gun away from him and also that one of his assistants, White, came to his aid, and he said that he was not a party to the assault. He also declared that at the time he was the affray a fight, as he was given no opportunity at any time to exchange blows with any of his alleged assailants.

George Allen, a resident of South Weber, testified that he came upon the scene of the trouble just in time to see a part of the struggle between Covey and the two young women, and saw one of the latter "kind of roll" to the floor of the viaduct when the officer pushed her aside to devote his attention to getting the whip from the other one. Continuing, he said: "I heard the girl with the whip say, 'Who are you?' and 'Why did you push me?' Then she called him a 'foul name' and bit him with the whip." At this point, the witness stated, he heard calls of "Smash him! Hit him!" coming from men under the viaduct, and a few seconds later a number of men in "high" hats swarmed upon the viaduct "like a mob," and attacked the officer.

On cross-examination, Mr. Allen said that there were about fifty people upon the viaduct at the time of the alleged assault, and that it was pretty well blocked with traffic. He also said that he did not know Covey was an officer until after the trouble was over.

Fleming Stanford corroborated Covey's testimony in the main, saying that he heard the girls "bawl the officer out" before any trouble occurred, and that one of them said to him, "You haven't any right of that motorcycle, anyway." The youth also saw one of the cowboys pick up a club, he said, but did not see it used. He also said that the gun-play occurred near the stairway.

HEALTH OFFICERS OF THE STATE IN SESSION

Salt Lake, June 16.—To prevent disease is the mission of the health officer; he is conscious of the noble work he is performing, but at the same time he realizes that he is underpaid," said Dr. A. A. Robinson of Ogden in his address at the seventh annual convention of health officers, which opened yesterday in the chamber of the house of representatives in the state capitol. Dr. Robinson addressed the conference should have been manifested, less than one-half of the health officers of the state being present.

Pure Food Regulations. Dr. E. R. McClure, connected with the local division of the United States bureau of animal industry, called attention in an address on "Pure Food Regulations" to the fact that unspiced meats are being sold in many small towns of the state, where, he said, meat regulations are not being enforced.

Dr. H. G. Merrill, health officer at Provo, recommended in an address on "Communicable Diseases" that all suspicious cases of infectious disease be quarantined until the expiration of the period of danger. He urged legislation giving health officers greater powers. In a paper on "Clean Town Competition," Dr. A. J. Neilson, city physician at Ephraim, told of work which has been accomplished throughout the state as the result of clean town contests. He recommended that the time of the contest be made shorter, but after a debate he agreed that a contest of about three months was attended by certain benefits he had not given full consideration.

Discussions were led by Dr. T. B. Beatty, secretary of the state board of health, who occupied the speaker's stand with Dr. Robinson.

Papers to be read today are as follows: "Sewage Disposal," Dr. W. E. Whalen, Ogden; "Sanitary Engineering," F. F. Deramus, member of the state board of health; "Infant Mortality and the Public Health Nurse," Dr. R. W. Ashley, city health commissioner of Salt Lake; "Endemic Goitre in Utah," Dr. J. C. Clark, Monroe; "Quacks, Culls and Nostrums in Relation to the Public Health," Dr. C. E. McDermid, Winter; "Quarters," "Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever," Dr. R. A. Pearce, Brigham; "Whooping Cough and Measles," Dr. W. S. Keyting, connected with the city board of health of Salt Lake, and "Public Health Progress in Utah," Dr. Beatty. Health officers who responded to the roll call yesterday were J. Edward Day, Garland; Dr. E. S. Budge and T. A. Greenhalgh, Logan; John Hughes and John A. Gardner, Mendon; J. J. Richardson, mayor of Smithfield; Dr. C. E. McDermid, Winter; and Dr. F. E. Estes, Standardville and

TWILIGHT SLEEP
FOR RACE SUICIDE

Manager Goss, of the Orpheum theater, has booked the famous Twilight Sleep motion picture, under the direction of The Modern Motherhood League, for three days, showing in Ogden at the Orpheum Theater, beginning Sunday afternoon. The League believes painless childbirth to be "THE ONLY CURE FOR RACE SUICIDE," and the sure way of hastening the time when those educationally and financially best fitted to rear large families will do so; the certain means of insuring better babies, healthier mothers, happier homes, improved morality and fewer divorces will come from the Twilight Sleep. Sunday matinee and two performances at night are for the ladies only. Mrs. Wenhah S. Abbott, representing the Motherhood League and a great believer in Twilight Sleep, accompanies the pictures and lectures on the subject of Maternity.—Advertisement.

Deaths and Funerals

HESTMARK—William Hestmark, formerly of Ogden, died yesterday at his home in Los Angeles, news of his demise being received in Ogden late in the afternoon. A. T. Hestmark, a brother of the deceased was on a fishing trip in Ogden when word of the news reached Ogden. It was carried to him and he immediately returned to Ogden. The death of William Hestmark was the fourth to occur in the family within 20 months, the others being the father and mother and a brother, Victor. "Will" was a member of Ogden lodge No. 2, one of the auxiliary cruisers, who Knights of Pythias, and of the Los Angeles lodge of Masons.

The funeral announcements will be made later.

ANDERSON—The funeral of Oscar Anderson will be held Sunday at 2 p. m., in the Lindquist chapel.

COLLINS—The funeral of Elaine Collins was held yesterday afternoon at the residence, 2121 Royal avenue, with Bishop M. B. Richardson presiding. Interment was in the city cemetery.

COLE—The ten-day-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Cole died at 8:45 last evening, at Clinton, Davis County, Utah. Cholera infantum was the cause of death. Funeral will be held at the home of the grandfather, Wm. Cole, in Clinton tomorrow at 10 a. m. Interment in Syracuse cemetery.

"It's a scream—my funniest picture," says Charley Chaplin, of "Police," coming to The Ogden next Sunday.

Mrs. Briggs was no exception to the general rule. She believed implicitly in the Heaven-sent genius of her offspring—and there were five of them.

Above all was she convinced that Gervangelina was born to charm the best audience in London by her gift for piano playing.

So at the age of 10 Gervangelina was sent twice a week to the expensive academy of Her Papanzel.

At the end of the first term the proud mother called on the great man in order to give him an opportunity of holding forth on Gervangelina's genius. Said she:

"Now, professor, how long will it be before my daughter is a really great pianist?"

Herr Papanzel thought for a few minutes. At last:

"Dot is a ding impossible to dell," said he.

"How's that?" said Mrs. Briggs, in a mother-fighting-for-her-young sort of voice. Im sure she has the necessary qualifications, hasn't she, now?"

"Vell, madam," said the professor, "she haf two hands!"

Two GERMAN CRUISERS SUNK

Stockholm, via London, June 16, 2:16 a. m.—In the naval engagement off Havre last Tuesday, Russian torpedo boat destroyers are believed to have sunk the German auxiliary cruisers Herzmann and Konig von Sachsen, two armored trawlers and a number of merchant vessels laden with timber and ore, which the German warships were convoying. Only two of the fourteen vessels under convoy, the Lavinia and Ingrid Horn, have been accounted for. They took refuge in Swedish ports. The crews of the sunken vessels are believed to have been saved, except sixty men from the auxiliary cruisers, who
